Dick Jemison of the Atlanta Constitution, who was president of the Flag League the past season, stands to lose a bunch of money unless the clubs of his league come through with the guarantee money which they were supposed to deposit but did not. Jemison kept the league going, it seems, out of his pocket, expecting to be reimbursed, but some of the honorable gentlemen who magnated in the various Flag League towns have not been as prompt as they might be with the coin.

During the first half of last year more than $25,000,000 worth of diamonds were produced in South Africa.

DISTRICT MARKSMEN WIN.
Company D, 3rd Infantry, Successful at Jacksonville.
Special Dispatch to The Star.
STATES CAMP GROUND, JACKSONVILLE, Fla., October 8.—Company D, 3rd Infantry, N. G. D. C., won the championship company team match this afternoon with a score of 371. There were thirteen competitors.

BASE BALL BRIEFS.
Former Three-I pitchers continue to shine in the majors. Tim McCabe for the St. Louis Browns put over his third victory today. The pitcher, who has been pitching for the Braves, held the Reds in a fine exhibition, not allowing a run, but giving up two hits.
Boston scalpers had their opportunity before the world series. Reserved seats for the series with Detroit were sold out a week in advance and the speculators who got hold of tickets peddled them at a big advance, as much as $10 a pair being paid for the pastebords.

Moline won the playoff series with Dayton for the third championship. Six games were played before the Ploymboys got the necessary four. Players divided 60 per cent of the receipts of the first four games, and the share of the Moline team was $32 to the man, while the Dayton losers got $45 each.

Monte Prieste started out the season with Syracuse in the New York State League as an infielder and made a mess of it, being turned into the pitcher by the Braves, held the Reds in a fine exhibition, not allowing a run, but giving up two hits.
News that Frank Boyle had agreed to take the management of the Marshalltown team of the Central Association was not until it could be decided on an offer, but he evidently thought it best to grab a job while the grabbing was good.

The three best outfielders of the Texas League assumed the major league trials through purchase or draft. Brooklyn bought Al Nixon of Beaumont, who had been a star in a favorable impression. Pittsburgh drafts Gene Madden from Galveston, and Detroit drafts George Harper from Fort Worth. Madden was the best hitter of the three and the best run getter.

The fact that Manager Ezra Minkoff left Louisville for his home in Huntington, W. Va., without signing a new contract with the Colonels, led to the impression in Louisville that he will not be retained as manager for next year. Owner Wathen let Jack Hayden go because he did not have his team on top, but under Minkoff it did not go to the front any faster. It is hard to work for a manager who can't realize there are eight clubs all fighting on a finishing day.

CROWD CHEERS PLAYS SHOWN ON THE STAR'S SCOREBOARD Chilled, Shivering Throng Watches Second Game of World Series With Less Enthusiasm.

It was a chilly, shivering throng that clogged the stands up this afternoon to watch the Star's big electric scoreboard play the second game of the world series between the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia National League. There is nothing like a sharp hint of frost in the air to take the pep out of the crowd of ball fans, and the wind that swept over this city from the northwest all day had more than a hint of frigidity in it—it was cold.
But at that, hundreds of fans buttoned the old overcoat up to the neck, or lacking the overcoat, snuggled their chins down into the collars of their coats, and with hands in pockets stood out on the 11th street side of the Star building and never missed a flash of the little electric lights that showed, play by play, how the contest was going.
The crowd began to gather a few minutes after 1 o'clock, although the game was not scheduled to begin until an hour later. Early arrivals took up positions along the curb on the east side of the street, and they didn't move out of their tracks for fear of losing the good places. On foot, on street cars and in autos the later comers reached the corner of 11th street and the Avenue, lining up on both sides of the street until only narrow passageways were left next to the buildings. By the time the game had progressed several innings the crowd had grown until it was almost as large as the one which witnessed the opening game on the scoreboard yesterday.
There wasn't a great deal of enthusiasm. It was too chilly for that. But it was an interested gathering of men—men in base ball's climactic event, the intent on seeing the scoreboard reproduction of the game—the second contest in base ball's climactic event, the world series. And, chilly or not, the fans that made up the crowd yelled and whooped whenever opportunity offered, just as a base ball crowd is expected to do.

CHICAGO IS TO HAVE A NIGHT OF REVELRY

Buling by Corporation Council
Takes the Sting From Dry
Sunday Law.

CHICAGO, October 9.—Restaurant owners and Chicago's hotels prepared today for an unusual rush of business when the Sunday saloon counsel, which order becomes effective at midnight. Drinks of all kinds may be purchased before 12 o'clock and consumed as long as the patrons of restaurants and hotel cafes desire to remain, according to an opinion by Corporation Counsel. Police. As a result of the opinion restaurant keepers expect a night of revelry equaled only by the New Year eve celebrations in Chicago.
The parade of anti-saloon workers, to be held today under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Labor, was expected to be made up of 25,000 marchers. That the demonstration will be the largest ever held in Chicago was indicated when more than 15,000 hats to be worn by the marchers were sold.
One thousand ministers, priests and rabbis are to lead the parade, which is to be made up of twelve divisions. Water wagons will be prominent among the score of floats.

Jesse Burkett severed all connection with the Worcester Club of the New England League September 20, when he turned over his stock to John O'Donnell. The Worcester Club was unable to meet its obligations and the expectation is that the stock held by Burkett will be taken up by local business men, who will advance enough to pay claims and take over control of the club's affairs. They believe that under new management Worcester will again show an interest in base ball. Burkett had become so unpopular that the fans absolutely refused to turn out to the games.

Handsome silver cups are on exhibition for the prizes in men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles and mixed doubles. There also are appropriate prizes in consolation events.
Chicago Varsity Wins Again.
CHICAGO, October 9.—The University of Chicago's base ball team, which is turning in a fine record, defeated Wabash University, 10 to 0.

SECOND CONTEST OF THE WORLD SERIES AS SEEN BY J. ED GRILLO

By J. ED GRILLO.
NATIONAL LEAGUE PARK, Philadelphia, October 9.—While the Red Sox were taking their batting practice Managers Moran and Carrigan were behind the pitchers holding an earnest consultation.

The President's box, decorated in the national colors, is directly between home plate and third base, and is very close to the infield.

The day is ideal. It is cool and clear, while the sun has made a wonderful change in the condition of the playing field, although there still are some soft places in the infield.

If such a thing is possible, today's crowd exceeds that of yesterday. As early as 1:30 o'clock the uncovered seats were packed to suffocation, and every seat in the grandstand was sold, and the crowd began coming early. A band of fifty pieces and four or five singers entertained the crowd. The singers used megaphones in order to make their voices reach the crowds.

Phillies First to Practice.
The Phillies again took their infield practice first. The chances are that in all future games Moran will follow this policy, because it brought victory yesterday. There was much more spirit in the practice, because the dried-out infield made it possible for the players to move about more easily, also made the ball move with much more rapidity.

Phillies Retired in Order.
Foster displayed good form in the last half of the first, retiring the side in order, though a very questionable decision by Evans made this possible. After the first, however, the side retired, the first on strikes, Paskert made a sharp hit toward first, which got through Hoblitzell, and the stand seemed to think that he beat Barry's throw to first, but Evans called him out.

Foster Hits for Two Bases.
Foster hit up a high fly to the right-field fence which netted him two bases. There were two out at the time, and Mayer took no chances on Hooper. Scott fled out to left, leaving two on bases.

The attendance today was 20,306. The total amount of gate receipts, $52,020. Of this amount the players get $25,250.48 and national commission $2,202.90.

Home-run Cravath opened the Phillies' attack, by a remarkably quick recovery, threw Paskert out at first. Had it gone through Bancroft would have easily scored.

Luderus followed with a double to right center. Both of these hits were clean-cut drives. Whitted was hit by a pitched ball at this stage, but Rigler would not allow it, claiming it hit the bat. Whitted's grounder to Scott put Luderus on third.

Niehoff fied to Hoblitzell. Niehoff fied to Hoblitzell, leaving Luderus on third. Foster hit hard in this inning. Besides the two doubles, Whitted and Niehoff both hit the ball hard, but could not get it safe.

Encouraged by the tying of the score, Mayer struck out both Lewis and Scott. A hit by Lewis with two out in the first half of the fourth, which Niehoff picked up behind second base, was the only incident worthy of note.

Foster in Splendid Form.
Both Cravath and Luderus fell victims to the strike-out in the second half of the second inning, and Whitted was out on a grounder to Scott.

Foster seems to be in splendid form. He has a wicked curve ball and his fast one seems to be on the batter before he knows it.

Mayer struck out the entire side in the third. Foster, Hooper and Scott being his victims. Mayer is an underhand pitcher, not unlike "Doc" Ayers, and with this motion serves up a sharp curve and a rising fast ball, which is hard to hit.

At the beginning of the fourth Foster and Mayer were on equal terms as far as strikeouts were concerned. The Red Sox, however, had three clean hits and a walk to their credit, not to speak of a run, while not one of the Phillies had been able to reach first base.

A hit by Lewis with two out in the first half of the fourth, which Niehoff picked up behind second base, was the only incident worthy of note.

Good Fielding Exhibitions.
Foster saved himself a lot of trouble by his ability to cover first base. In the first four innings he had three putouts to his credit, and on two occasions saved Hoblitzell from an error, when he fumbled and then recovered in time to hand them to Foster, who covered the bag.

Boston outfield gave evidence of its ability. Speaker had three putouts, caught Stock's little fly, and after Bancroft had been tossed out at first, Paskert hit a line fly to right center, which the lightning-like fielding of Bancroft and a beautiful throw beat him to first.

The Sox had the bases full with two out in the seventh, but could not score. Barry started the inning with a single, with one out, but was forced by Thomas on a clever play by Bancroft. Foster then singled to left, and in trying to field Hooper's little ball Mayer slipped and the bases were filled. Hendrickson was sent to bat with Scott, but the best he could do was a little pop up to Luderus, thus ending the inning.

A wonderful one-hand stop over second base by Bancroft retired Lewis for the third out in the eighth. Lewis seemed to have a base hit certain, but the lightning-like fielding of Bancroft and a beautiful throw beat him to first.

During the first half of last year more than $25,000,000 worth of diamonds were produced in South Africa.
